

The habilitation is a kind of “second Ph.D.” that has the “double weight” of a Ph.D. thesis. Usually it can be submitted not earlier than six years after having obtained the Ph.D. and must be defended in front of internal and external examiners. In many European countries only holders of the habilitation are entitled to apply for tenured positions.